Academic Excellence

The Part-time MBA curriculum is designed for people coming from myriad backgrounds including liberal arts, engineering, natural sciences, and social sciences, as well as business. While providing a thorough grounding in contemporary management, it blends and balances technical rigor, management theory, practical application, and areas of specialization.

Convenience and flexibility are fundamental features of UConn's MBA Program curriculum structure, allowing students to design individualized programs to best meet their personal needs and professional goals. MBA courses are delivered in Hartford, Stamford, and Waterbury all year long and are generally offered evenings, weekends and in a variety of blended formats. Ours is a top 25 public MBA program in the country. We take pride in our part time MBA program being almost identical in design, delivery and requirements to our full-time program. You get our MBA degree, the same as our full time program. The vast majority of classes are face to face, taught by full time faculty. We also provide career guidance if you are planning a transition.

Moving up the Career Ladder

One of the greatest benefits of pursuing UConn's Part-time MBA Program is that you can experience an education equivalent to the full-time program without halting your professional work. As a result, you have daily opportunities to apply what you learn in class to your own workplace.

The MBA at UConn requires 57 credits of graduate level courses. We designed the curriculum for students with backgrounds in liberal arts, engineering, natural sciences, and social sciences, as well as business. While providing a thorough grounding in contemporary management, it blends and balances technical rigor, management theory, practical application, and individualized areas of concentration.

It may just as well be that you are looking for more than just simply enhancing your skills to further your career in your current job. Perhaps you are interested in moving into an entirely new function, organization, or industry. Or maybe you'd like to start your own business.

UConn's MBA Program can help you by providing the skills and knowledge you'll need to succeed.
